most vibrant counties in the state and is the home of Warner Robins Air Logistics Center, the largest single employer in the State of Georgia. Boasting a growing population of approximately 160,000, it is known for stable and responsible government, outstanding schools, a capable and energetic workforce, and an abundance of southern charm and hospitality. Its strategic location on I-75 in the upper Coastal Plains of Central Georgia, makes it a prime choice for residential, retail, and industrial growth.

Perry and Houston County have award winning developmental authorities that are well connected with State and local business and government officials, and work diligently in their efforts to bring new and exciting industry and retail to the area.

Perry is located 30 minutes South of Macon, and 1.5 hours from Hartsville International Airport in Atlanta.
